

Vacancy – Laboratory Technician (Bristol Laboratory)

Are you from a Geotechnical background where you've worked with soil and rock testing from offshore/onshore surveys? We have undertaken consistent growth and development of since our inception. We are now continuing to broaden our solutions and require a laboratory technician to join our friendly team located in our brand new laboratory located in Bristol to help achieve these objectives.

Job Summary

The Laboratory Technician is responsible for undertaking soil testing as instructed based on the approved lab schedules and under the guidance of the Laboratory Manager.

Functions and duties

- Participate in any health and safety talks, meetings or training
- Log in/out all samples in line with procedures and ensure their safe storage
- Prepare, test and analyse samples to determine their content and characteristics, using laboratory tools or testing equipment – testing may include but not be limited to
  - moisture contents,
  - Plastic and liquid limit testing
  - Particle size distribution tests
  - Density tests
- Compile test reports based on the required international testing standards
- Record and process test data.
- Perform and record daily and weekly equipment checks.
- Ensure timely execution of laboratory tests.
- Any other duties deemed necessary, which are within the bounds of the incumbent's competence and function.

Qualifications and Experience

Experience in a similar role is desirable and geological knowledge would be preferred.

We offer a competitive salary and benefits dependant on experience.

Ready to take on a new challenge in an international offshore company? Apply for the position you are interested in by sending us your resume and cover letter to careers@geoquip-marine.com with the vacancy title as your reference.